Who am I?

- Consulting Field Solutions Architect @ Pure Storage
- Co-leader – Denver PowerShell & VMware User Groups
- Serial collector of Communities, now an International speaker (huzzah!)
- Find me: ~~Green~~ ~~Orange~~ Colored hat, big grin & the loud "Howdy Y'all."
- I have little (no) shame, and try to share my learnings with others
- Push yourself, Learn more, Don't fear sharing
- Share YOUR knowledge (Perspective is important)
- Teach whatever you can (Be The Master – Don Jones)
- Job vs Career

Don't let any of this scare you!
Even I'll screw this up, and we'll all survive...

Some Git Basics

Avoiding mistakes/conflicts, meaningful commits & pulls

.gitignore

Ignoring files & preventing mistakes

- ◎ Log files
- ◎ Compiled code
- ◎ System files
- ◎ Usernames, passwords, environment vars, oh my...

- ◎ Global / personal / by file
- ◎ Do this by:
  - Pattern per line (Blanks for readability)
  - * - Wildcard
  - / - Directory
  - ! – Negate
  - ? – 1 char wildcard

Branching Out

- ◎ Focus on a single task
- ◎ Avoiding conflicts
- ◎ Keeps your code streamlined
- ◎ Can be used as a training/onboarding tool
- ◎ Does not need to be only code/software features

Committing to Be Meaningful

- ◎ High-level vs low-level (strategic vs tactical or what vs why)
- ◎ Smaller & single-purpose
- ◎ Commit more often
- ◎ Test before you commit
- ◎ Concise description, then more detailed explanation
- ◎ Character limit
- ◎ Use text editor
- ◎ Searchability

Pulling the Right Way

- ◎ Write it smaller
- ◎ Link it to an issue or ticket
- ◎ Review it yourself, as not yourself
- ◎ Linters & automatic tools
- ◎ Define workflow & owners
- ◎ Comments to reviewers; respond quickly
- ◎ Git commit “rules” still apply
